PAULÍNIA DATA CENTER

Paulínia Data Center

Home to one of the largest petrochemical complexes in Latin America, Paulínia plays a key role in the local economy. This strategic location was also chosen to house the Paulínia Data Center.

The site is located on the main highway cutting across the city, providing quick access to São Paulo and other nearby cities with high storage capacity, energy and redundancy. An investment fit to match the economic relevance of one of the most dynamic regions in Brazil.

Rua Sebastião Cardoso s/n – Paulínia – São Paulo, CEP 13141-005

About Ascenty

Ascenty is a Digital Realty and Brookfield company and Latin America's largest data center provider, with 22 data centers in operation and/or under construction, interconnected by a dedicated fiber-optic network spanning 4,500 kilometers.

The company has developed and operated world-class data centers since 2010, serving some of the world's largest technology companies. In line with Ascenty's expansion project, the company received strategic investment from Brookfield, one of the largest asset managers in Brazil in the infrastructure and private equity segments. With Digital Realty, the company now takes on even more expertise by joining a global network of more than 260 data centers located across the globe.
